Walmer Blend

A beautifully balanced pairing of the Hever and Benenden ranges, weaving together warm reds, soft oranges, and gentle smoky-brown shading for a mellow, welcoming roof. Both ranges share the same sanded finish, giving the blend a wonderfully cohesive, weather-faded feel reminiscent of an old Kentish farmhouse. Walmer Blend is ideal for village homes, barn convestions, and properties where you want warmth with a hint of age.

Individually handmade. Quietly exceptional.

Spicer plain clay roof tiles are individually handmade - every single tile formed by hand, one at a time, by skilled tile makers. Not "hand-finished" after the fact. That distinction matters on the drawing board and on the roof. The subtle variation from tile to tile, the soft camber: these are the qualities that give a Spicer roof its depth of character and its honest, lived-in beauty, even on day one.

A premium clay tile for sensitive and contemporary projects alike.

Our handmade plain tiles are specified across the full spectrum of pitched-roof work - from listed buildings, conservation areas and barn conversions where sympathetic weathering and tonal variation are essential, through to high-end new-build, residential developments and architect-led contemporary projects where a roof needs to be a considered design choice in its own right. A broad palette of colour blends is available, alongside bespoke blends, matching fittings and specials made to your detail.

Specified with confidence. Backed for the long term.

Every Spicer handmade plain tile is covered by a 50-year product guarantee - the kind of longevity that lets you specify once and stand behind the detail for the lifetime of the building. Request samples, or speak to our team early in the design stage to discuss colour, fittings and lead times.

Quality Certification

Spicer Tiles are tested by LUCIDEON (formerly CERAM) and have passed:

BSEN 538: 1994 for strength.

BSEN 539-2: 2005 for resistance to frost damage.

BSEN 539-1: 2006 for impermeability to water.

Please note: as our tiles are individually handmade using traditional methods, variations in colour, shade, surface texture, and finish are entirely natural and to be expected. These subtle differences are part of the character and charm of a genuine handmade tile, ensuring that no two roofs are ever quite the same.
